

GRANT WRITING WORKSHOP

Tuesday 17 January 2023
ECCI, Conference room
10:00-12:00

The ability to put together a strong, concise and cohesive proposal which responds to the needs of different funding partners is an essential skill in academia and beyond. As with any skill, improvement comes with practice, and the sooner you start writing grants, the better. This is an imminently transferable career skill, whether you stay in academia or go on to work elsewhere.

9:45/10:00: grab a tea/coffee before the start

10:00-10:55 Grant Writing in academia

Kyle Dexter

The academic grant-writing portion of this workshop will focus on the general principles of academic grant writing and inform you on some of the grant opportunities available to you as a PhD student at the University of Edinburgh.

10:55-11:05 Tea/Coffee break

11:05-12:00 Grant Writing in non-academic environments

Jamie Brogan and Alison Wood (ECCI)

The business section of the workshop that focuses on writing proposals for different types of clients or funding partners. This is increasingly important for academics as impact and the ability to develop and apply your research in collaboration with industry becomes more of a priority for funding, and as research develops through new funding sources.
